

Campus health services expand

by Patricia Cinelli

Gallaudet's Student Health Service (SHS) has created opportunities on campus for students, faculty and staff to learn about preventative health and self help techniques. Have you been thinking about joining a Weight Watchers program? Would you like to learn about sports related injuries, AIDS, birth control, hepatitis or health insurance? Do you have difficulty choosing a doctor in the area that is appropriate for your needs? The SHS offers programs, lectures, or assistance in all these areas.

SHS, a unit of Student Affairs, has expanded its services to include not only outpatient care for the entire student campus but also more health education and instruction on preventative care. "We have a health and wellness fall lecture series, an alcoholics anonymous, and diabetic lunch group, and we plan to start a weight watchers group and a seizure group. All are open to the campus community," said Marsha Melamed, SHS director.

Under Melamed's direction, SHS has established a formal working relationship with Capitol Hill Hospital (CHH), located about a mile from campus. "About a year ago, we asked CHH if it was interested in providing support services that SHS couldn't provide," explained Melamed. These services include x-rays, emergency room care, hospitalization and some laboratory work. "They (CHH) were very interested so we developed procedures and lists of people to contact at both institutions," she said. Last year SHS in conjunction with the National Academy presented a five part series on working with deaf patients for CHH personnel. CHH purchased TDDs and developed a list of interpreter services.

The relationship between CHH and SHS has been continuing and growing this year. CHH has opened its health education programs to Gallaudet by providing interpreters. "Our relationship with CHH makes it easier for students to go to the hospital and be seen and for us to receive information back from the hospital," said Melamed.

While the formal working rapport with CHH is new, the relationship Gallaudet has with the Washington Hospital Center and Children's Hospital is not. SHS maintains a list of consultant doctors at each hospital and tries to have a private physician meet a student in Emergency or have the student admitted under a private physician's service, she said. SHS will share the list of physicians used by Gallaudet with faculty or staff.

SHS is currently working with Holy Cross Hospital, located about five minutes from the Northwest Campus, to set up a similar kind of program for preparatory students there.

The look and location of the SHS remain the same. Melamed pointed out that SHS, located in the basement of MSSD, has seen approximately 25,000 people in the past year which averages about 100 patients per day. Outpatient care is limited to students on campus; however, staff and faculty may be treated at SHS for an on-the-job injury. "While they (staff and faculty) are welcome to attend any health education lecture or luncheon group we cannot provide routine medical care," said Hines, who has been working part-time at SHS for two-and-a-half years.

SHS has 30 beds and Hines said that most of the students she and the other doctors examine and treat have the same kinds of medical problems as

MSSD hosts play festival

In its first major activity as part of the National Thespian Society, the Model Secondary School for the Deaf will host a Fall Theatre Showcase this month in which local high schools for hearing students will make their plays accessible to hearing impaired audiences.

MSSD students will perform the plays "Goodbye to the Clown" and "Cinderella" during the festival to be held Oct. 20-22 in the school's auditorium.

In addition, Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, the Duke Ellington School for the Performing Arts and the West Virginia School for the Deaf will also take the stage at MSSD. Schools for deaf students in Delaware, New Jersey and Virginia have also been invited to participate in the festival.

"It's a very student-centered activity that requires leadership from our students," stated Thespian advisor Cindy Rohr-Redding. "(The students) are the hosts and are planning many of the activities. It's also a wonderful opportunity for interaction with students from very different backgrounds."

Added Tim McCarty, MSSD Performing Arts instructor: "We're really looking for a sharing experience for all the students involved."

The Thespian Society is a national organization devoted to promoting drama and dance activities in schools. Students must earn points to join, points awarded through participation in at least two different facets of a drama or dance activity.

MSSD will perform both its entries all three nights of the festival. "Goodbye to the Clown," a story of a teen-ager with an imaginary companion, is entirely student-produced. Tressy Kimble from Midlothian, VA, will produce the show. Laura Dugger of MSSD's Communications Department will direct "Cinderella," an Irish take-off on the Cinderella story.

Casts from visiting schools will perform their one-act plays, dances or sign songs during each evening. To further the educational experience, the troupes from visiting schools for deaf students will tour the Gallaudet Campus while the groups from public schools tour MSSD.

The MSSD National Thespian Society chapter will host workshops in make-up, stage direction, movement and creative signing on Saturday, Oct. 22.

All performances are free and begin at 8 p.m. For ticket reservations, call 543-PLAY (voice or TDD).

Other dramatic events planned for the year include the Fall Dance Concert, the Music Concert and the Spring Play.

College TTY-a-thon nets $16,000

This year's fund-raising TTY-a-thon for the Gallaudet College Fund netted $16,000, about three times more than was raised last year through a direct mail campaign.

Held late last month, the second annual Gallaudet College Fund (formerly called the Annual Fund) conducted for the first time a TTY-a-thon in the Washington Metropolitan and San Francisco Bay areas. The D.C. area TTY-a-thon raised just over $12,000 in pledges from 200 people over an eight-night time period while the San Francisco Bay campaign raised $4,000 in four nights.

A TTY-a-thon will be used again next year, according to Ernest Hoffman, coordinator of the Fund in the Development Office. "I think this kind of contact is much better than a direct mail campaign. We received pledges from alumni who have never donated money to the College before," he stated.

John Krpan, chairman for the metro area TTY-a-thon, said 40 volunteers placed TTY calls to area alumni from a bank of phones and TTYs set up in the workshop room at Ely Center. Some workers, like student Brian Tait, volunteered more than one evening of their time. "(Tait) . . . volunteered himself for seven nights," Krpan said. "We all enjoyed this project and I think the alumni like this kind of personal contact."

Because it was impossible to conduct a nationwide TTY-a-thon this year, alumni and friends in other regions of the country will either be personally contacted or reached through mail to make pledges to the Gallaudet College Fund.

treated by other ambulatory services. "We see any kind of illness you can possibly consider. There are lots of infections, colds and many orthopedic and sports-related injuries as well," explained Hines.

The other part-time physician on staff is Dr. Steven Taub who is an internist. SHS expects to hire a third doctor to work at the Northwest Campus. About six months ago the University of Alabama and West Virginia University set up a formal residency program at Gallaudet. An Ears, Nose and Throat (ENT) specialist from Alabama and one from West Virginia work on a rotating basis at the ENT Clinic at SHS open twice a week.

A consultant gynecologist sees patients every other week. Tuesday afternoons at 4 SHS conducts a women's clinic. An ophthalmologist examines students every other Tuesday morning. Hines pointed out that this consultant primarily screens MSSD students but is available to other students with eye problems. There is also a consultant psychiatrist available to handle psychiatric evaluations and mental health problems. He works closely with Gallaudet's Counseling and Placement Center.

The SHS is open M-F 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. for outpatient appointments. Two nurses remain on duty all night to care for patients in beds and to handle emergencies. If you have any questions or want more information about programs call SHS at x5522.

Poetry discussion set

On Oct. 18, Trent Batson, director of the American Studies Program in the English Department, will deliver the second lecture in the English department colloquium. Batson's presentation on "The Elements of ASL Poetry" will be a preview of new course "Comparative Poetics: ASL Poetry and English Poetry" to be taught this spring.

During the presentation, Batson will be assisted by Clayton Valli, an American Sign Language poet and graduate student in the Linguistics Department. Through video tapes and live examples the two will give examples of the structural components of poetry. Batson says, "In poetry I could write about the years chugging ahead, puffing and hooting along the tracks and the reader would get my metaphor to mean that the years, or time, seem to be rushing ahead like a railroad locomotive. We can do the same in ASL poetry by making the sign for year similar to the way one would sign railroad locomotive."

The colloquium presentation will be on Oct. 19 at 4 p.m. in Hall Memorial Building room 151.

Lecture series schedule

The Health and Wellness Lecture Series Fall 1983, sponsored by the Student Health Service, will feature four discussions this month.

Lectures on hepatitis and AIDS will be given Oct. 18 in Room 213 of Hall Memorial Building. The discussion on hepatitis will last from 7 to 8 p.m., with the discussion on AIDS following from 8 to 9 p.m.

Lectures on genetic counseling and seizures will be given Oct. 26 in Room 213 of Hall Memorial Building. Genetic counseling will be the first topic of discussion from 7 to 8 p.m., with the discussion on seizures to follow from 8 to 9 p.m.

Research seminar series begins

While persons over the age of 65 account for 30% of the annual medical costs and 50% of yearly federal health expenditures, there are no effective programs of comprehensive medical and psychological care for that age group, according to the director of Geriatric Evaluation Service at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, MA.

That fact, Dr. Burt Adelman told a group gathered at Kendall Auditorium, is unfortunate because "early, comprehensive diagnosis and treatment are the keys to good health care for the elderly."

Adelman, who also serves as a professor and researcher in the Division on Aging at Harvard Medical School, was the first speaker of the Gallaudet Research Institute's 1983-84 research seminar series on hearing loss in adulthood.

He explained that most normal body functions decline in a linear fashion from the peak of development in the late 20s, although different body systems decline at different rates and great variability exists in different individuals.

Approximately 38% of all people over the age of 65 have a "significant functional impairment" that limits them in some way in their daily activities, Adelman noted.

However, he stressed, "old does not mean sick. That is a myth we must dispel."

"Comprehensive health services must move beyond the traditional emphasis of medicine in treating acute conditions to the provision of medical, social and psychological services which enable the elderly to function normally in the community for as long as possible," he said.

To that end, more knowledge is needed as well as the cooperation of different professions, service and community agencies, he stated.

Hirshhorn loans art

Gallaudet College has received a generous loan of art work from the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden. During the week of Sept. 19 seven pieces of contemporary sculpture were installed in locations on the Gallaudet campus.

An abstract piece entitled "Moses" now greets people as they enter the main entrance of the Learning Center. This sculpture was done by Etrog, a Canadian artist. "Standing Horse" by Marini, an Italian sculptor best known for his work depicting horses, can be seen on the first floor of the Kendall Demonstration Elementary School. In a different style, Lipchitz's "Rape of Europa II," representing his feelings on the effects of World War II in Europe, stands on display at the Model Secondary School for the Deaf.

The large lobby of the Washburn Arts Building now contains a large scale bronze work by the contemporary Japanese sculptor Toyofuku.

In the lobby of the Field House, one of the loaned pieces has been placed with a piece from the Gallaudet Collection. A part of the collection entitled "Jesse Owens" by Joe Brown has been moved from MSSD to join "L'Athlete," a Hirshhorn piece by Storel.

On exhibit in the Auditorium is an early work by Reuben Nakian. This piece represents his earlier works before he turned to more abstract expressions.

The seventh piece is located at the entrance to the Edward Miner Gallaudet Building. It is a bronze entitled "Study for the Third Watcher" by Reg Butler, a British sculptor.

The works are on loan to the College for approximately one year and will be relocated throughout the campus during their stay.

The National Science Foundation has extended its search for candidates for the Presidential Awards for Excellence in Science and Mathematics Teaching until the end of 1984. Eligible candidates should have at least five years experience teaching mathematics or science in any of the grades 7 through 12.

The program is aimed at providing national recognition for distinguished secondary school teachers and encouraging them to remain in teaching. Approximately 100 teachers will receive Presidential Awards, half of which will be made to science and half to mathematics teachers. At least one teacher will be selected from each state and other jurisdictions such as Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia.

The search is conducted by NSF in coordination with the Department of Education through a consortium of national scientific and professional societies and science and mathematics teachers associations.

Kendall parents meet with faculty members

Kendall's Home and School Organization, the parent-teacher association of Kendall Demonstration Elementary School, held its first meeting of the year Sept. 29, with parents and faculty members turning out en masse for an overview of the current school year.

"Parents want to take a more active role in their child's education and the KHSO hopes to provide the opportunities this year for that to happen at KDES," said KHSO President Susan Watson.

According to Watson, three goals have been established by KHSO members for this year: improving parent-teacher communication, advocating parents as resources in their children's education and advocating parents as resources for each other.

The first meeting, essentially a Back-to-School Night during which parents met by department with their children's teachers and program supervisors, kicked off the year's activities.

KHSO plans for the year include publishing a Kendall cookbook with recipes contributed by faculty, staff and parents and exploring possible computer activities.

Research division hosts national groups

Gallaudet's Division of Research met with representatives of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness and the American Federation of the Blind Sept. 29 and 30 to plan the initial stages of a survey of persons with visual impairments. The group met with division staffers who have developed a procedure for an annual survey of hearing impaired children and youth, which may become a model for census surveys of special populations.

During the Thursday reception, Marvin Efron, O.D., Ph.D. and specialist in aids for visually impaired persons, mentioned that data is needed to assist AFB and others in designing services for blind people as well as data for NSPB that monitors the causes of blindness for research purposes. Over the years, advances in medical treatment and health care have had an impact on both the causes of blindness and deafness. An annual survey would track some of these changes in the population and help in planning needed services.

Doin Hicks, vice president for Research, said that he looks forward to sharing the expertise developed at Gallaudet.

Captioned showing of 'Big Chill' a sell-out

For the first time in history, a major motion picture premiered with open captions in Washington, D.C., attracting a capacity audience of 450 people from the deaf community.

On Thursday evening, Sept. 29, the Tenley Circle Theatre on Wisconsin Avenue NW showed the captioned version of "The Big Chill," a film distributed by Columbia Pictures. In general, the film received excellent reviews from movie critics around the nation. The captioned version of the film was shown at the theater during the afternoon matinee for one week following its premiere.

The film's captioned version also premiered to a sell-out crowd in Hollywood, CA, and will soon be shown in New York. Members of the deaf community have expressed hope that with such attendance, Hollywood producers will include captioned versions of their movies when they are first released.

The captioning of "The Big Chill" was underwritten by Terrence J. O'Rourke, president of T.J. Publishers of Silver Spring, MD and El Paso, TX. Proceeds from the Washington, D.C. premiere benefitted the National Association of the Deaf, the National Captioning Institute and Gallaudet College.

Tax program schedule set

The two upcoming general informational sessions on Gallaudet's 403 (b) Tax Sheltered Annuity/Investment Program will follow the schedule outlined below.

The first session, scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 12 from 1-5 p.m., will offer four 15-minute overview presentations of the College's various plans. The presentations will be given at 1:15, 2:15, 3:15 and 4:15. Representatives from Oppenheimer, Templeton, Mutual of New York, Security First, First Investors, New York Life and TIAA/CREF will be on hand to answer specific questions about their plans.

During the second session, to be held Thursday, Oct. 13 from 9 a.m.-1 p.m., presentations will be given at 9:15, 10:15, 11:15 and 12:15. Representatives from Oppenheimer, Templeton, Mutual of New York, Security First, First Investors, New York Life and VALIC will attend.

Both sessions will be held in the Multipurpose Room of Ely Center. For more information about Gallaudet's 403 (b) program or the sessions, call David Curtis at x5113 (voice/TDD).

Benefit campaign gets underway

The 1984 Combined Federal Campaign will begin its three-week effort on Campus this week. The CFC, which assists the United Way in government agencies, will support over 300 private voluntary agencies this year.

At Gallaudet, campaign workers have set a $27,200 goal for this year, $3,000 more than was collected last year on Campus. Contributions to the campaign—whose theme this year is "Hand in Hand Helping Others"—can be made through the payroll deduction plan.

This year's administrative costs will represent 4% of the campaign. One out of every three people in the National Capital Area received services last year from the United Way/United Black Fund, which is one of the major groups of the CFC.

Computer book out

A recently published SpecialWare Directory is now available to educators looking for sources of software/courseware for use in special education.

The 95-page booklet, just released by Linc Associates Inc. of Columbus, OH, contains more than 230 titles of computer courseware either specifically designed for special education use or which can be used with modifications. The index offers access to the listings by type of handicap, compatible hardware, educational level and instructional approach as well as by curriculum area.

The book is available for $13.95 from Linc Associates, 1875 Morse Road, Suite 215, Columbus OH, 43229. Anyone wanting to look at a copy of the book before making a purchase can do so by calling or visiting Room 106 at MSSD.

Trenton Batson, center, has lunch with Tom Landers, right, and Bernard Bragg at the Ole Jim as the Alumni House began serving lunch earlier this month.

Campus readies for Homecoming

The Gallaudet-Clemson Club football game will highlight the week of homecoming activities set for Oct. 16-21. The week's events will also include a pep rally, homecoming ball, tour of the Northwest Campus and soccer and field hockey games. All events are open to faculty and staff members as well as students.

The pep rally is set for Friday, Oct. 21 at 7 p.m. at the Field House, with a Playboy night scheduled that evening from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. at the Cafeteria. Admission for the Playboy night, which will feature a live band, casino and entertainment, has yet to be announced.

A full day of homecoming activities are scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 22, beginning with a tour of the Northwest Campus for Gallaudet alumni. The tour of the Campus, located at 1640 Kalmia Road NW, will be given from 9 to 11 a.m. Transportation will not be provided from the main Campus.

Following the tour, a homecoming luncheon will be served at Ole Jim from 11:30 to 1 p.m. The homecoming float parade, beginning at noon, will assemble at Ole Jim and work its way to Hotchkiss Field and end in the HMB parking lot. Dr. Johns will be one of five judges for the floats entered in the parade.

As the parade disperses, the homecoming football game will begin. Scheduled for 1 p.m., admission to the game is free to faculty, staff and students with a Gallaudet identification card. Admission for all others is $2.

Tentatively set for the same time as the football game is a field hockey game between Gallaudet and Marymount at 1 p.m. and a soccer match pitting Gallaudet against Shelton College at 2 p.m.

A homecoming bash will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. at Ole Jim.

A homecoming ball will be held Saturday from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. at the Sheraton Washington Hotel on Connecticut and Woodley Avenues NW. Tickets purchased before Oct. 15 cost $23 for a non-student couple, $18 for a student couple, $15 apiece for non-students, and $10 apiece for students. Tickets purchased after Oct. 15 or at the door will cost $30 for a non-student couple, $23 for a student couple, $20 apiece for non-students, and $15 apiece for students.

While there is a possibility a bonfire will be held on Sunday, Oct. 16, details had not been finalized when On the Green went to press.

More programs captioned for TV viewing

Among the commercially broadcast television programs to be closed captioned for the first time this coming television season by National Captioning Institute Inc. will be "The People's Court" and Public Broadcasting Service shows such as "Monday Night Documentaries," "The Emigrant Saga," "The Oil Kingdoms" and "Nature."

In addition, the American Broadcasting Companies, Inc., which was recently honored by the Gallaudet College Alumni Association, the National Association of the Deaf and other organizations for its efforts in closed captioning, will increase by 10% its annual commitment to help fund more captioned programs. ABC-TV inaugurated its closed captioned service for hearing impaired viewers in 1980. The continued financial support of the Kellogg Co. will enable ABC-TV "Afterschool Specials" for young people to be closed captioned for a third year.

Viewers can also enjoy closed captioned films on television this fall. More than 30 home videocassettes and videodiscs have been subtitled for hearing impaired people. A list of those movies includes "Flashdance," "The Year of Living Dangerously," "A Man for All Seasons" and "Faerie Tale Theatre." NCI plans to code more films in the near future.

NCI is a nonprofit organization established in 1979 to provide closed captions for the television and entertainment industries so that hearing impaired viewers could read on the screen what they could not hear. Today, more than 70,000 homes across the country have been equipped to receive closed captioned programs for an estimated viewing audience in excess of 300,000 persons.

Funds to caption TV programs come from a variety of sources: networks, government, corporations, foundations, program advertisers and producers.

In an effort to finance the captioning of more television programs, NCI has formed the NCI Caption Club. Annual membership is open to anyone who wants to make a contribution in any amount from Oct. 1 and Sept. 30 of the following year. Membership contributions will be used solely to fund the captioning of additional television programs.

Eagles lose squeaker to St. Paul's High

MSSD lost its first football game of the season on Friday, Sept. 30 to St. Paul's by a score of 8 to 0. Heavy rains forced up by Tropical Storm Dean made the football field very muddy.

St. Paul's scored what proved to be the winning touchdown in the second quarter on a blocked punt at the Eagles' 10 yard line. The two point conversion was good. For a moment, it appeared the Eagles were going to roll when Pat Crooks intercepted a St. Paul's pass and raced 80 yards to the endzone only to have the TD nullified on a clipping penalty.

The Eagles next home game is this Friday (Oct. 14) at 3:30 p.m. against Quantico.

Bison downed, 37-13

Stevens Tech racked up 34 points in the second quarter and coasted in the second half to defeat the Bison 37 to 13 last Saturday, Oct. 1.

The Bison scored 13 points but had three potential scoring opportunities stopped when three passes were intercepted in Stevens' territory. Gallaudet's record is now 1-1 and the next home game is scheduled for this Saturday, Oct. 15, against Mercy Hearst College at 1 p.m.

Correction

The dual degrees program approved during the September faculty meeting will not go into effect immediately as reported in the Sept. 26 edition of On the Green.

Gerald J. Daly, associate professor of Physics and department chair, wrote to OTG and explained that the program must first be approved by the Board of Trustees of Gallaudet College, the Board of Trustees of George Washington University and the presidents of both institutions.

"However, the Physics Department is ready to begin advising students on the courses they will need in order to participate in the dual degree program," Daly said.
